SPARE THE FLIES.

Oh, swatter, hold your hand, I beg, and do not slay that humble fly that tickles you with active leg-why should the lovely creature die? The Force that gave you life and breath designed that fly, so blithe and gay. Who gave you powers of life and death? Who said that you might freely slay? Because some scientists insist that flies bear germs from place to place, you take a bludgeon in your fist and would exterminate the race. The germs and flies have equal rights with men enjoyment to pursue, and so have skeeters, which, at nights, oft charm us with their loud bazoo. I hold that any living thing has title deeds as good as ours, to loaf around this world and sing, and sip the honey from the flowers. And when I see some husky guy take lethal arms and fiercely pounce upon some unsuspecting fly, that does not weigh a half an ounce, I feel that I'd set up cigars, or buy the lime juice by the tub, if some big monster came from Mars, and soaked him with a -foot club. When next you go to swat a fly; im the monster came-some freak a thousand cubits high, and held a club above your frame! WALT MASON.
